In the bottling department of the Schaefer Brewing Company, nearly opposite the New York Central power house, all the ordinary glass windows were blown out, some of them with their frames also. The lower floor was equipped with metal window frames and wired glass, and none of the latter was wrecked. One light in the door was severely shattered but held all its glass intact. Commenting on this circumstance, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Dean of the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital, whose surgical skill was in demand after the explosion had occurred, said: --I believe that every public vehicle should have glass of this pattern, or glass protected by wire netting. I operated on Monday from nine o'clock in the morning until four o'clock in the afternoon and a good many...
