I (Great applause.) Such were the words with, which I commenced an address to the friends of Polk, Dallas, and Shunk, in 1844, about this season of the year, in the district of Spring Garden; and the Democratic news that had come that day, - the day succeeding a gubernatorial and congressional election - was esteemed as the sure presage of victory to the party, as we esteem the news to-day. (Cheers.) We live in curious times, politically, my friends. Why is it that the Democratic star of the East, and the young Democratic Giant of the West, have wheeled into line and put themselves on either side of the Whig Gibraltar, Vermont? Why stand Democratic Maine and Iowa, supporting Whig Vermont? There is a significance in the fact. It tells, to those who understand it, the whole secret of the uprising of the people which has made a party (so far as...
